

Dream Corner

My Wedding and Dream Honeymoon.

It's been a whirlwind nine or so months since the man of my dreams asked me to be his wife. The season leading up to our wedding and honeymoon was a challenging time for both of us, personally and professionally. Here at the end was a Beautiful day that symbolizes in everyway the love and commitment we feel for each other. The Dream come true for my wedding has been the flexibility and the lifestyle that my Mary Kay business allows. From moving our wedding date up six months, facing health challenges and family loss, I have been so grateful that I can change my schedule on a dime. The poised, calm determined woman I have become in the last six years, who can handle crisis, drama and the insane wedding industry is truly priceless. As I looked around the room at our wedding and reception, it was so great to see so many precious friends who have come into my life because of my Mary Kay business. I have continued to receive cards and gifts from customers who are thrilled to see me so happily settled. What a rich life of friendship! Our honeymoon was a dream come true for me: Two weeks, four Countries and two continents. We were sitting in an outdoor restaurant in Venice on the second to the last night of our trip and I over heard a thirty something American women tell another couple how great her first five day vacation in five years has been. Someone asked her why she hasn't taken one before, and she was clearly delighted to answer: "Oh everything would fall apart at work if I am gone too long." I wasn't close enough to butt in and tell her about the MK opportunity, but I thought about how sad that was that she was proud of being chained to a desk. My lifestyle is truly amazing: the trip to Venice was my fourth five day or longer vacation this calendar year, and i have two more coming up. All this is without skipping a beat in my career, or losing income! Thank you Mary Kay for giving me the opportunity to make an executive income, a balanced lifestyle and world class fun.
